

Senator Byrd Urges Financial And Military Preparedness

United States Senator Harry Flood Byrd has issued the following statement on National Defense:

"British and French difficulties in this war are due directly to lack of military preparedness. Two-thirds of the world's armaments, and America is unprepared to meet this crisis should it develop here. We must have sound government finances and adequate national defense.

"For ten years the Federal Government has been spending vast sums more than its income—spending with extravagance and carelessness, never before known in a democracy, which accounts largely for the addition of $28,000,000,000 to the public debt. It is necessary now to make large expenditures but they must be concentrated on national defense."

"I believe the American Navy is the best in the world, but we must recognize today, it is not adequate to defend us on both the Atlantic and the Pacific. We need a larger and greater navy, an effective air force and an adequate army.

"We must be prepared to defend ourselves from any and all aggressors in time of ruthless dictators. Otherwise the very life of our Republic is in danger. We cannot wait. Expenditures sufficient for adequate national defense must be authorized immediately, so our military preparedness can be made effective. But we must remember that financial preparedness is just as important as military preparedness. This I have said repeatedly in the last few years in an effort to curb extravagance and unnecessary national spending.

"The time to face the acute situation realistically is upon us. The surest way to avoid war is to be ready for it, and avoidance of war is the only way to avoid the controlling influence of any official clique."

To Finance Preparedness

"It is the impelling duty of Congress in the current critical circumstances to eliminate every extravagance; to abolish every unnecessary expenditure; to devote our resources to the vital necessity of preparing ourselves to meet any contingency and any crisis that may occur.

"To this end I suggest appointment by the Congress of the United States a non-partisan commission to report as promptly as possible on the elimination of non-essential federal spending; on the abolition of every wasteful appropriation; and at the same time to report on such revision of our tax system as is necessary to pay, but government in sound financial condition necessary to meet imperative expenditures for increased armaments.

"The current situation is a mandate to the people of the nation to cease demanding expenditures in excess of income, and to realize that the best protection of our democracy lies in sound finances and adequate defense."

COTTON AND WHEAT GROWERS RECEIVE PARITY PAYMENTS

Virginia cotton and commercial wheat farmers who planted within their acreage allotments for 1940 will be entitled to parity payments at the rate of 1.55 cents per pound on cotton and 10 cents per bushel on wheat, says S. R. Cassell, state AAA executive officer.

The rate of price adjustment payment on a commodity shall not exceed the amount by which the 1939 average farm price of the commodity was under 75 per cent of the parity price.

In determining the eligibility for 1940 parity payments in the case of individual farmers, the sum of the averages of cotton, tobacco and wheat on the farm must not exceed the sum of the allotments or permitted acreages of these crops under the 1940 Agricultural Conservation program.

In determining the eligibility of a producer who has an interest in more than one farm, the producer will be ineligible for either cotton or wheat commercial wheat payments if he found that his aggregate share of the total acreage of cotton and tobacco on all farms in which he is interested exceeds his aggregate share of the allotments of these crops.

Cannot Offset Benefit

These regulations mean, in effect that a farmer may not receive a price adjustment payment for planting wheat, if his allotment for one or more of the other crops exceeds his share of the total acreage of those crops.

Applications for 1940 parity payments for commercial wheat farms may be submitted to county agricultural conservation associations as soon as wheat performance has been checked, though performance with respect to cotton and tobacco has not been determined, says Mr. Cassell. In such cases the applicant agrees to refund the payment if full performance is not rendered.

The payment for a farm is divided among the landlords, tenants and sharecroppers in the same proportion that each shares in the proceeds of the crop. All or any part of any payment which would otherwise be made to any person under the AAA regulations may be withheld or reduced if it is determined that the farm is not in compliance with the regulations, or if the farm is not in compliance with the regulations, or if the farm is not in compliance with the regulations.

FARM FAMILIES ARE THRIFTIEST AND BEST FED IN THE NATION

A survey of more than one million farm families and city families recently made under the direction of the Department of Agriculture, reveals some interesting differences in living habits.

Farm families are the best-fed population group in the country. Farm families on an average consume 50 per cent more milk, 15 per cent more butter and 25 per cent more leafy, green and yellow vegetables than small-city families.

Farmers have larger families, forty-two per cent of farm families have five or more members, compared with 28 per cent of city families.

Farmers are more thrifty, they tend to live more within their means. I in the principal farm areas, farmers with an annual income of $2,000 or more, save an average of $28. City families at the same income level save an average of $18.

In automobile ownership, the farm families were ahead—94 per cent of farm families owned a car, compared with 87 per cent of city families. This is due to the fact that the farmer has a larger area of land to travel over, and he is more likely to have a car for his own use.

Tobacco Mosaic

Mosaic virus was given to each of three men. Each took off a piece of the cured leaf, crushed it in his fingers and then pulled 100 plants, which were in bundles of 100 each, in the order of pulling. The fourth man, his hands free of the virus, pulled 200 plants. These plants were set in the order pulled by men with clean hands. In each of the first three lots of 400, over 100 plants became diseased, but a crop of plants which was pulled with clean hands, and which was pulled by a man who had been handling diseased plants, showed no signs of disease.

It has been shown by experiments that tobacco mosaic infection may be carried over to a slight extent in the soil. Tobacco mosaic is a disease of infected tobacco plants. The virus of this disease is not a true virus, but a protein. It is not a true virus, but a protein. It is not a true virus, but a protein.

The Ford Motor Company was founded by a workingman for working-men.

Its present offices began as employees of the Company. It was the first company to pay a minimum wage, beginning in 1914, at the then astounding figure of $5 a day. That was double the prevailing wage of the time. The Ford minimum is now $6 a day for all employees engaged in production work. And from that, the wages rose to $10.80 a day, with the average wage $7.25, exclusive of salaried employees.

Henry Ford and Edsel Ford keep daily personal touch with all phases of Ford manufacture.

In a conference with his staff, Henry Ford often says: "Go ahead—I'll sit here and represent the public."

The Ford Motor Company employs men without regard to race, creed or color.

It is common knowledge that working conditions in the Ford shops are the best in the world. A constant care can make them a square deal, a just wage and stabilized employment for a large proportion of our employees—and as fully stabilized for all as conditions will permit—enable our men to retain their personal independence.

In consequence of these policies the Ford Motor Company has one of the finest bodies of employees in the world.

The larger proportion are mature men of long time has been the average American family—for which it has consistently provided easy facilities which furnish the only wealth they could buy.

It is the policy of the Ford Motor Company to share the benefits of advancement with its employees.

Methods and management with wages and public alike. Increased wages and employment over a period of many years have resulted in a 300 per cent increase in the built-in value of the Ford car and a 75 per cent reduction in its price.
